The Undeniable Link Between Giving, Growth, and Retention

What if we told you that your giving strategy, or lack of, could be having a negative impact on your organization's growth and employee retention? The cost of replacing an individual employee can range from half to five times the employee's salary, so the solution seems simple, keeping your people helps you grow your bottom line. By focusing on generosity, we've proven that you can not only find the right hire but also engage, retain and develop your people. Learn more about the undeniable link between giving, growth, and retention in this discussion with the CEO of Titus, Jonathan Reynolds.

8:50am | Sara Stern

Some Lessons Have to be Learned Twice

Some things happen in your life and you learn the lesson right away. Other lessons have to be learned more than once. Hear a few embarrassing lessons Sara has learned (and a few poignant ones too). This interactive, silly, yet serious session is meant to inspire your life and career.

9:50 - 10:05am | Networking Break

10:05am | Kristie Clayton

I Am... Now What? How to embrace who you are by enhancing your I am statement

When Kristie Clayton made the simple decision to speak kindly to herself, she became a better leader than she ever thought possible. This session will be the breakthrough you need to begin your bad-ass journey: that is, confidently owning who you are while still retaining humility. We'll develop and reveal the success behind "I am" statements, and the damage that can be caused by negative self-talk. Both personally and professionally, exuding true confidence starts with your inner monologue.

11:35am - 12:00pm | Closing Ceremony
